About

Description

Jakub is attorney in our Corporate Commercial team, specializing in banking and financing law, and advising both Danish and international companies. His expertise spans a wide array of complex financial contracts such as portfolio management agreements, advisory agreements, derivative contracts, custody agreements, distribution agreements, and more.

A notable focal point of Jakub's proficiency lies in capital markets law, asset management, and FinTech, advising companies within the financial sector that are subject to financial supervision. Furthermore, his expertise extends to the operational intricacies and structural dynamics of collective investment schemes, including UCITS and AIFs, across various asset classes.

Jakub's skills also extends to financial business operations and compliance, evident through his role as a co-author of the FinTech section in "The Financial Technology Review," as well as his active involvement as a presenter and lecturer at esteemed institutions.

With his deep understanding of client's business models, relevant regulations, and commercial considerations, Jakub delivers tailored advice that creates value. Engaging as a client with Jakub offers access to competent, personalized, and highly specialized assistance that is finely tuned to your unique needs.
