About

Description

Torsten is a certified IT attorney and highly specialized in data protection law and IT law, advising a wide range of private companies and public authorities. Torsten also serves as an external Data Protection Officer (DPO) for several businesses.

With his experience as a former in-house lawyer and manager in several large IT companies, he has extensive knowledge of the technology, processes, and challenges related to legal issues. With this knowledge, he explores practical and implementable solutions that consider both commercial aspects and legal requirements.

In addition to his focus on data protection law and IT law, Torsten also handles marketing law, intellectual property law, advice to entrepreneurs, LegalTech, and AI-related challenges.

Torsten is an experienced and sought-after speaker, frequently sharing his vast knowledge, providing practical examples, and offering valuable advice to businesses and clients when new legislation or guidelines emerge in the dynamic field of data protection and IT law. This enables companies to take timely action.
